

Antoine Rouillard & Thomas Touchet built a house for Noel Morin on the Sainte Genevieve coast. That is actually the Coteau Sainte-Genevieve.

Bonjour à vous,

I just finished reading your blog "Noël Morin & Helen Desportes". (My grandmother was a Morin, which explain the fact that I came upon your site.)

Super and interesting stories ! :-)

The mention of "Sainte Genevieve Coast" caught my attention and I immediately suspected an error in the translation.

You see, I live myself on what is still known as the "Coteau Sainte-Geneviève". The word "Côteau" means slope or little hill. The Côteau Sainte-Geneviève is a gentle downhill slope which stop at the edge of the Cap-Diamant. It is now part of the faubourg St-Jean-Baptiste, Québec City.
